

Please do not make any changes that would lessen the law regarding unwanted telephone calls. It really does work. Americans today spend so little time at home with their families as it is. Trivial interruptions should not be a part of this time. Before this law was instituted we would be interrupted many times during an evening. At times, the word "No" was not heeded and the calls just kept coming.

Please keep in mind that the home should be one place where an individual can relax and do the "family things" that need to be done. When I want products, I'll go seeking that product. I do not need someone else to tell me what they think I need.
